

I make no claim that the ONA represents the only 'true form of Satanism' - it is simply one tradition among many, although it does pre-date the formation of the CoS. What I express and have expressed, is that organizations like the CoS and the ToS by their very nature actually hinder the development of those qualities which I and some others believe to be central to Satanism. By this I mean that any organization which prescribes a dogma for its members to believe,

I make no claim that the ONA [Order of Nine Angles] represents the only 'true form of Satanism' - it is simply one tradition among many, although it does pre-date the formation of the CoS [Church of Satan]. What I express and have expressed, is that organizations like the CoS and the ToS [Temple of Set] by their very nature actually hinder the development of those qualities which I and some others believe to be central to Satanism. By this I mean any organization which prescribed a dogma for its members to believe.

27 May 1992 ev

From the collection Satanic Letters of Stephen Brown, letter to Diana Vera